

Calendar Think Tank Team: Guiding Change

What is the framework that will guide decisions on the development of a district calendar to ensure students are college, career, and community ready?

Why The “Why” of the decision making process Current Reality	Unacceptable The “Unacceptable” things must not be left out of the decision making process	What The “What” of the decision making process Desired Results
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Students attend for 175-178 days depending on the number of snow days. Three snow days are built into the calendar. If the snow days are not used there is no change to the end date of the school year. ● Teachers have 187 contract days including 3 in-service, 2 parent conference/in-service days, 3 preparation/record days, and 1 data retreat day (Four of these days occur before the school year begins). ● Student school year starts after September 1 and ends a full week before summer school. ● Summer school starts the third week of June. ● Late starts occur every Wednesday morning. ● After school RAP or similar PD conflicts at times with other 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● To start prior to Sept. 1st per state law unless no more than 45 instructional days separation exist at any point in the school calendar or district applies for innovative waiver from DPI ● To have less student contact minutes than state law requires: Grades K-6: 1050 hrs and Grades 7-12: 1137 hrs. ● To increase the total number of contract days for teachers ● To have the calendar significantly impact busing costs. ● To create a calendar that increases likelihood of summer slide. ● To reduce summer school/interim opportunities from both an academic and financial standpoint. ● To increase the childcare burden on parents. ● To decrease Professional Learning Community (PLC) or Professional Development time/opportunities for staff. ● To increase the discrepancies 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Develop a calendar that supports optimal student learning (i.e. summer slide, intervention and enrichment, start time research, continue student growth year to year, length of day/class period) where possible. ● Develop a calendar that supports continuous improvement and teacher diagnostic work. ● Aligns end of term with extended breaks. ● Align conference and record days with end of terms at all levels. ● Develop a calendar to support standards based grading. ● Build additional professional days into the calendar to reduce conflict with PD after school and the need for subs. (Better structure/flexibility with PD/PLCs) ● Align better with testing schedule professional requirements as teacher have conflicting responsibilities at the end of the school day.

- Winter and spring breaks are clustered around Christian holidays.
- H.S. and M.S. have quarters/semesters while elementary schools have trimesters
- We use trimesters, quarters, semesters for feedback yet have the ability to provide feedback 24/7.
- Conference schedules differ by level and may differ from grading periods.
- Parents are taking breaks at times opposite our calendar resulting in students missing instruction
- A late Easter means spring break falls during Grade 3-10 state testing
- Schedule coordinates similarly with colleges (ie summer session and semesters) for students taking college courses
- Summer break allows students to attend camps and boys/girls club, hold summer jobs and take college courses
- Students in extracurriculars leave early from school and miss class time
- Some extracurriculars currently hold practice/events over school breaks making travel/vacation difficult
- Columbus Day and MLK JR Day are vacation days for students/staff
- Students currently have 22 days off where parents may need to find additional childcare between the grading periods and record keeping dates.(trimesters/semesters/quarters).

- To significantly impact the daily schedule by drastically increasing total minutes each day
- To eliminate week long breaks that support staff and student wellness.
- To develop a calendar in absence of stakeholder feedback (e.g staff, parents, childcare providers).
- To significantly impact student work schedules and extracurriculars activities.
- To create a calendar that positively impacted one level while negatively impacting another (elementary/secondary).

- Schedule/Calendar that align better with parental requests for vacations or traditional activities such as hunting season (outreach to parents to work within calendar).
- Better balance with breaks to avoid fatigue/strange stretches.
- Meeting needs of free/reduced students.
- Align breaks so that they allow for holiday travel time (this year's spring break for example).
